Rondout, New York - West Strand Historic District

The Rondout–West Strand Historic District is located on the shore of Rondout Creek along the southern boundary of the city of Kingston, New York, United States. Formerly Rondout, New York, it is bounded by the creek, Broadway, Hone, Ravine and McEntee streets, an area of 570 acres (2.3 km²) containing 259 buildings, most dating to the 19th century. US 9W and the John T. Loughran Bridge are immediately to the east; the Kingston-Port Ewen Suspension Bridge crosses the creek to the west. The neighborhood is often referred to locally by either of the two names.

The name of the Rondout Creek comes from the fort, or redoubt, that was erected near its mouth. The Dutch equivalent of the English word redoubt (meaning a fort or stronghold), is reduyt. In the Dutch records of Wildwyck, however, the spelling used to designate this same fort is invariably Ronduyt during the earliest period, with the present form rondout (often capitalized) appearing as early as November 22, 1666. The word could also be broken down into its components and translated, literally, "round-out." However, it seems unlikely that the inhabitants of Esopus had any special meaning in mind when they corrupted the Dutch word reduyt into ronduyt and rondout. Most likely, this corrupting process merely represented the simplification of a word (reduyt).

The Strand (original pronunciation, in Dutch: "strunt"). Strand means, in Dutch, a shore or beach. The street running along the north shore of the Rondout Creek near its mouth has always been called "The Strand," or, more recently, "Strand Street" (East and West).

A short, easily navigable distance up the creek from the Hudson River, the area, originally known as Kingston Landing, had always been an ideal location for a harbor. But it was not until the establishment of the Delaware and Hudson Canal in 1828 made it a key junction for coal being shipped from Northeast Pennsylvania and bluestone being quarried from the nearby Catskill Mountains that it was able to fully take advantage of that situation. It grew so rapidly that it incorporated as the Village of Rondout in 1849. By 1872 it grew so much more it merged with the then-Town of Kingston to form today's city. By the time the canal closed in 1899, it had acquired buildings in all 19th-century architectural styles.

The industrial base established was such that the neighborhood remained prosperous long after the closing of the canal. But by the 1960s it had, like similar areas in many other American cities, fallen into decay, and it was only when urban renewal and the construction of the bridge led to the demolition of part of the neighborhood that efforts to preserve the remainder were seriously undertaken.

It was added to the National Register of Historic Places in 1979; the city has recognized it in its ordinances as well. Today, the area is still an active waterfront, although it primarily sees recreational traffic. Many small boutiques and restaurants have opened in the old buildings along the streets; it has become a popular destination for visitors both by land and water. It is located adjacent to the West.

Colonial era

The early Dutch settlers realized the value of the creek for their colonial ambitions. However, the contention that a trading post or fort was established at the mouth of the Rondout in the early part of the 17th century is thoroughly debunked in Marc B. Fried's The Early History of Kingston and Ulster County, NY, pp.3-14 and 155-61. The first non-Native structure at this location was undoubtedly the house of settler Christoffel Davits in 1653, and a fort was built here by the colonial government in 1660. The local Native Americans likewise frequented the area. In 1652, an Englishman, Thomas Chambers, became the first to acquire a land deed from the Indians, nearby, along the Esopus Creek (which has a vast expanse of good farmland), and thus began the genesis of present-day Kingston. The Rondout's role in the area's early settlement was as a port for the settlement that was made along the Esopus Creek [The Early History of Kingston, chapter 2]

Settlement did slowly progress inland, but it was not until well after American independence that the Rondout would become economically important. In the early 1820s two Philadelphia businessmen realized the immense profits that could be made if they could find a way to get the mostly unmined high-quality anthracite coal from undeveloped Northeastern Pennsylvania to the lucrative markets of New York City. Railroads had not yet been perfected, so they saw the possibility of a canal running from Honesdale, Pennsylvania, to the Hudson at what was then the village of Rondout. In 1828 they obtained a charter for their company to do this, and the Delaware and Hudson Canal was opened a few years later. Coal was transferred from canal barges to river ships at Rondout, and it became a boomtown quickly. The canal remained a prosperous operation until late in the 19th century when rail transportation finally became more affordable, and ended its days in 1904 after a brief period carrying Rosendale cement.[9] The former terminal port area for the canal is now Kingston's Rondout-West Strand Historic District, listed on the National Register of Historic Places.

The Building

OLE SAVANNAH is located on the Historic Rondout at 100 Rondout Landing. The building is part of the former Cornell Steamboat Company shops. The Cornell Steamboat Company was the dominating towing company on the Hudson from 1880 to the 1930's. The building was a "boiler shop". Boilers for the ships were both built and repaired at this sight, which is located directly on Rondout Creek.

Rondout is the river port of the city of Kingston, which was incorporated in 1872. Rondout was established by the Dutch in the seventeenth century as an Indian trading post. The Rondout village was situated on the Hudson at the mouth of the Rondout Creek. The creek empties into the Hudson through a large, protected tidal area. Prior to it's incorporation, it was known as The Strand, Kingston Landing and Bolton (in honor of the president of the Delaware & Hudson Canal Co.)

Getting to Know Howard Cogswell

1 What is your best childhood memory?

Being born. I don't remember much about it, but I do know I was there. OK, I started with a joke...time to try to get serious.

Can't say I have a "best" childhood memory. I can say I enjoyed my childhood and had fun growing up. I remember playing in the Cranberry Bogs in Massachusetts and delivering newspapers in the early morning hours in Hawaii. My father drove while brother Ed delivered one side of the street and I did the other side.

2 If you had a chance for a "do-over" in life, what would you do differently?

Considering that we are all a product of our environment and experiences I can't say I would do much different, or I wouldn't be who I am today, and I am pretty content and thankful with how things have all turned out, so why change the past?

3 How did you and your wife meet?

Originally, I met my wife while she was working part time at McDonald's. It was a strange deja vu kind of event because we both remembered it years later, and I was just a random customer. Later, I was a single parent with two small children and met her at a Parents Without Partners dance. We compared stories and found we both had custody of two small children, the same sexes and ages, and it became a match made in Heaven.

4 What do you feel most proud of?

I try not to be proud. I would rather be thankful! Thankful and proud of my children and family, though.

5 What is your favorite music?

When I was a child I was a comic book nerd. I morphed into enjoying records then and ended up wanting to and becoming a radio disc jockey. My favorite music was always Top 40, although now I like almost anything, sans Rap and Hard Rock.

6 If you could travel anywhere, where would you go and why?

Come to find out, when you retire you almost CAN travel anywhere. Australia fascinates me, but I am afraid if I visit that I may not want to come back.

7 If you could only keep five possessions, what would they be?

As I get older I realize that when it is all said and done you keep nothing, so I am not attached to any items I MUST have. I do, however, wish to retain my clear mind while here.

8 What teacher in school made the most impact on you and why?

Interesting question. When I was in the third grade we were given an art assignment that required us to draw a house. I thought it was dumb and uninspiring, so I sat there upset with the assignment while watching others draw houses with just roof's and all one dimensional. The teacher then announced we only had 5 minutes to finish, so I figured I better get moving. Suddenly, inspiration hit. I drew my three dimensional house, but decided this was not going to be an ordinary house. It was on fire, and there was a firetruck next to it putting out the fire. I was SO inspired that I drew on BOTH sides! The next day the teacher told the class EVERYONE handled their assignment well, EXCEPT two people! She then said, "Joseph and Howard, would you please come to the front." She gave me my paper and told me to show it to the class. I proudly displayed it and explained what it was. She then had Joseph show his. It had just his name on it. She told him to turn it over and he did. It was blank! Our classmates laughed. That was the day I understood adults were not always right. I couldn't help but think that my over inspiration was compared equally to doing nothing at all. The next day report cards came out. I could see the art portion grade in ink had been erased and changed to a "needs improvement". I have never forgotten this lesson, although I do not remember this teachers name.

9 What do you want your tombstone to say?

Just want it to document that I lived a very LONG life!

10 What was one of your most defining moments in life?

Deciding to be a Christian.

11 What is your profession and why did you choose that profession?

I went to college to become a broadcaster. I chose this because I wanted to have fun and get paid for doing it. I worked radio for 10 years, then switched to retail for 2 years, next settling in on the financial industry for over 30 years. I am now retired and my wife owns an on-line bookstore.

12 How do you spend your free time?

Travelling

13 If you won the lottery, what would you do?

Wonder how I got the ticket, as I rarely play.

14 Who do you most admire in life?

There are many good role models, but the ultimate in life and death is Jesus.

15 What are your top three favorite books and why?

Hard to pick a top 3, but I prefer non-fiction, overall. Fact is indeed stranger than fiction. And who wouldn't list the Bible as number one....

16 What are you most afraid of?

I grew up poor and for many years my biggest fear was being broke. I no longer worry about that, and instead just want to maintain my mind, spirit and body.

17 What feels like love to you?

God is Love, and all you need is love!

18 What is your strongest personal trait?

Flexibility, I think, although that is a better question to ask others who know me.

19 What was your most embarrassing moment?

There are too many to remember and I am too old to care.

20 If you were president, what is the first thing you would do?

Probably hire a good attorney to thwart the endless investigations!

21 What age do you feel right now and why?

My biological age. Funny how one day you just wake up and you are old!

22 If you could witness any event of the past, present, or future, what would it be?

The Creation! I'll bet the special effects are SUPERB!!!

23 What is a skill you would like to learn and why?

To become a better listener. Being one of nine children, I always felt like we had to jump in whenever we could or we wouldn't be heard. Been working on this one for many years...

24 What does a perfect day look like to you?

Any day where you don't need a plan, yet everything goes right anyway.

25 How would your friends describe you?

Best that you ask them! (I may not want to know).

Year four pupils at Westbury Leigh Primary School were recently visited by Wessex Water to help with their topic on rivers. Children learned about the water cycle, the role of Wessex Water, the use of rivers, where tap water comes from and how we clean water.

Lucas Wint, of Westbury, has so far raised more than £700 for the cancer unit where his friend's beloved gran is receiving treatment. Lucas was determined to run the 5K Bowerhill Bomber race on February 3 but the event was snowed off and cancelled. Undeterred by the icy conditions, family friend Tom Reynolds took Lucas out and they ran their own race around Westbury, covering over 6.5k. Hearing about Lucas's determination, the Bowerhill Bomber race organizers offered to take Lucas around the 5k route once the snow and ice cleared. A week later Adam Firks, of Redfish Events, which organizes the race, ran the very muddy route with Lucas, enabling him to complete his personal challenge in an impressive 26.5 minutes - and to be the only 2019 runner to receive a medal.

Maz Evans from Dorset visited Westbury Leigh Primary School and held workshops with the pupils where she spoke about her series of children's books set in ancient Greece and the characters behind her stories. Year 5 and 6 pupils focused on this topic in lessons in the summer term.

Cogswells in the News and Sports

Justin Cogswell, CEO of Operation Build Up (Conesus, NY) spent days and sleepless nights working to give one Rochester family a new house and an SUV. The family had been homeless for more than a month.

In December, Joy Cogswell retired from 45 years of playing piano in multiple capacities for Snyder Memorial Baptist Church (Fayetteville, NC), including every Sunday morning's traditional 11 a.m. service. She loved what she did; in those 45 years, she only took four Sundays off.

In basketball, coach Brian Cogswell is back at the head of the bench for Lenox Middle School & High School (Lenox, MA) this season. The Lenox assistant principal with 22 years of varsity coaching experience stepped in to helm the program just a week before the season began, after an unfortunate personal situation caused Scott Sibley to step down. Luckily for the Millionaires, an experienced replacement was right down the hall.

Christi Cogswell, a Sandpoint Senior High (Sandpoint, ID) junior, was installed as honored queen of Bethel No. 9, International Order of Job's Daughters, in public ceremonies Sunday at 7:30 p.m., Dec. 27, 1968 at the Sandpoint Masonic Temple. Christi is the daughter of Judge and Mrs. Dar Cogswell of Sandpoint and the granddaughter of Robert M. Spencer of Coeur d'Alene.

More than one hundred brave swimmers jumped into Lucky Peak Reservoir for the 16th annual Great Polar Bear Plunge to raise money for Make-A-Wish Idaho. "That was really cold, but really refreshing," said Zach Cogswell. "It's probably the best way to start the year." The swimmers raised $48,000.

Cole Cogswell was a member of the winning 200-yard medley relay for Cardinal at Avery Aquatic Center January 11th. On Feb. 9th, Abrahm DeVine (44.59) held off classmate Cole Cogswell (44.62) in a bang-bang finish for first and second. The roles were reversed in the 50-yard free when Cogswell (20.17) out-touched DeVine (20.19). Patrick Conaton and Cogswell also led off the winning 400-yard free relay team.

Keegan Cogswell received high honors in Grade 12, at Stearns Junior-Senior High School Bangor, ME.

Russ Cogswell from Apex True Value Hardware in Marietta, OH, said there are measures people can take to make their home warmer and more efficient. Cogswell said the tape-like foam goes on the edges of doors and windows in order to keep drafts from outside to a minimum. A quick fix for people wanting to get warm is a portable heater, Cogswell said. The heaters are good for heating small areas if used with caution. Ventless portable heaters do have the possibility of starting a fire if left unattended.

Sarah Cogswell, of Cluck and Trowel Organic Farm (Dartmouth, MA), stands in front of what remains of a barn on the Dartmouth farm she rents. An early morning blaze January 19th destroyed the barn and the equipment stored there, also killing 200 young chicks which were to supply the farm's eggs during the upcoming summer season.

Water has been bubbling up out Soquel Drive between Mission Drive and Thurber Lane (Santa Cruz, CA) for months, years or more than a decade. For Live Oak resident Paul Cogswell, however long the time period, it has been long enough. Cogswell, audibly emotional about the issue, said he noticed water coming up from the ground near a parking lot exit driveway hosting Garden Liquors and Deli and a 7-Eleven about six months ago, not long after the road was repaved Parent company CookNSolo Restaurant are building a "village" in Pearl Properties' upcoming, 25-story apartment project (Philadelphia, PA). The first floor will house K'Far, a new bakery. It will feature pastries and baked goods by pastry Chef Camille Cogswell, who last year was awarded the James Beard Award for rising star chef of the year.

The Lakeview High School Theatre (Sharon, PA) is working on a murder mystery, "Curtains." Senior Kayla Cogswell, 18, plays Carmen Bernstein, producer of "Robbin' Hood." She has "lots of big songs" and is very demanding. "She's super sassy," Cogswell said.

The Country Kids 4H Club met on Feb. 18 at the Highland Ridge Community Church of Lowell, OH. Max Cogswell was elected president and secretary.

Theresa Cogswell, past chairman of the American Society of Baking received the Robert A. Fischer Distinguished Service Award from the American Society of Baking during BakingTech 2019. The award is given annually to recognize and honor outstanding service and leadership by an individual to the society.

Damian Cogswell is a wide receiver for the Saint John (NB) Saints. Damian is currently a Junior, scheduled to graduate in 2020.

Deaths

Darrell J. Cogswell, 72, died Dec. 31, 2018, at his home in Delta, CO.

Wilma Cogswell, 88, died November 2018. Wilma married Prescott Cogswell in 1957. Wilma taught elementary school in Riverside, AR. She is survived by her husband Prescott, her children, Kristy Mettler, Prescott C. Cogswell and Dana Cogswell, and seven grandchildren.

Louisa Davis Cogswell, 91, died Dec 4, 2018 at Jamaica Plain, MA. She was born in Cambridge, MA, on May 25, 1927. She left behind a brother George R Cogswell, Jr. and a sister-in-law, Eleanor Cogswell, of Maryland.

Tanis Diedrichs, 79, died Feb 4, 2019, in Waterloo, IA. Tanis was a great friend of the CFA. Ellie has a fat folder in her files containing numerous letters from Tanis providing the CFA with valuable research details covering many years, always accompanied with words of encouragement.

2019 Cogswell Family Reunion - Nova Scotia

2019 Cogswell Family Reunion—Nova Scotia

The 2019 Cogswell Family Association will be holding a Reunion in Nova Scotia, Canada, Thu., July 18th thru Sun., July 21st. Registration forms MUST be returned by June 1, 2019. Please print out the form, below, complete the necessary information and return to the address shown on the form. You can also download the form from the CFA website cogswellfamily.org.

Your hotel reservation must be made before June 29, 2019. Be sure to specify that you're with the Cogswell Family Reunion to get the group rate.

See the Reunion Registration Form, below, for the hotel address, phone number and room options.

For those of you coming to the 2019 CFA Reunion in Nova Scotia, you should be aware of the following:

Visitors to Canada must hold a valid passport with at least six months remaining before its expiration. Visitors from visa-exempt countries (with the exception of the US) are required to purchase an electronic travel authorization (eTA, $7), similar to the USA's ESTA visa-waiver, before departing their home country. Visitors from non-visa waiver countries must apply for the appropriate visa, prior to arriving in Canada. Once you arrive in Canada, the border officer will ask you a few questions about the purpose and length of your visit. Questioning may be more intense at land border crossings and your car may be searched. Once the immigration officer has verified your passport, eTA/Visa and travel plans, you'll go through customs.

For updates (particularly regarding land border crossing rules), check the websites for the US State Department (www.travel.state.gov) and Citizenship & Immigration Canada (www.cic.gc.ca).

Having a criminal record of any kind, including any drunk-driving related charges, may keep you out of Canada. If this affects you, be sure to contact the Canadian embassy or consulate in your home country.

Don't forget, the Cogswell Family Association's website has moved.

You can find us anytime at www.cogswellfamily.org. The old website site www.cogswell.org no longer exists.

In addition, all the officers email addresses now end in @cogswellfamily.org. You can find the listing of their "official" email addresses at <http://www.cogswellfamily.org/officers.html>

We recently added a new page about the Cogswell Family Association Reunion in Nova Scotia in 2019. Be sure to visit this page for the most current information. As new information is received it will be added to this page: <http://www.cogswellfamily.org/reunion2019.html>
